

JJ PREMIER GROUP

GUIDE NO. 12

Selling a home you don’t live in

How a sale runs when you’re away, what you can sign from where you are, and what the title company will ask for.

BY JOELYN NAUMAN · UPDATED OCTOBER 2, 2026 · 10 MIN READ

JJ PREMIER GROUP · COLDWELL BANKER REALTY

How to use this guide

Read this guide once, start to finish. Then use the checklist at the end in the weeks before the listing goes live.

Laws and forms change. Each part of this guide says where its facts come from. Before you count on them for your sale, check with the title company and, if you need one, a lawyer.

Inside this guide

01 What's different when you're away

02 The keys and the empty house

03 What you can sign from where you are

04 If someone signs for you

05 When a trust or an estate owns the house

06 A tax rule for sellers from other countries

07 Before the listing goes live

08 Your sale on one page

As you read, keep coming back to three questions

1. Who has the keys?
2. What can you sign from where you are?
3. Whose name is on the deed?

01

What's different when you're away

The sale runs the same way it would if you were here. A few parts need a plan, and this guide covers each one.

Picture a house on a canal in Bradenton. The owner is a thousand miles away. The house still has to be shown, inspected, photographed and sold.

Some owners move before the house sells. Some are only here part of the year. Some are settling an estate.

The sale runs the same way. The house gets shown. A buyer makes an offer. The papers get signed, and the money is sent to you. What changes is who does what, and where.

We do the parts that need a person at the house. You do the parts that need the owner, from wherever you are. Being away shouldn't mean knowing less. We can send you a written report every week.

FIG. 01 · WHO DOES WHAT

What happens at the house, and what happens where you are Read each side. The left side is our job. The right side is yours, and none of it needs a trip.

AT THE HOUSE, WE

Handle the parts that need a person here

- Hold the keys and set the rules for showings
- Check the house after each showing
- Meet the photographer, the inspector and the appraiser
- Send you a written report every week

WHERE YOU ARE, YOU

Handle the parts that need the owner

1. Sign the listing papers online
2. Read the weekly report and the offers
3. Decide on the price and the offers
4. Sign the closing papers in front of a notary

The left side is how we work. The right side follows Florida's signing rules, which sections 03 and 04 explain.

Source: Our practice; the signing rules come from Florida Statutes 668.50, 689.01 and 695.03, cited in sections 03 and 04

Here's what the weekly report holds. Who came to see the house, and what they said. What sold on the street, and our read on it. When an offer comes in, you get it the same way, with our advice and the reason for it.

02

The keys and the empty house

Someone has to hold the keys, watch the house and keep the air running. Here's what we do, and the two calls you should make.

We can hold the keys, set the rules for showings and check the house after each one. If the house is empty, we can make sure the air conditioning stays on.

If the house is furnished, we tell you what to leave and what to clear before the photos. An empty room and a full one each need a plan.

Now the two calls. First, call your insurance company. Most homeowners policies change what they cover once a house sits empty for a month or two. Tell them the house is empty and ask what to do. Some will add a vacancy endorsement, which is a short add-on to the policy.

Second, if you've moved away for good, call the property appraiser. Florida gives a tax break, called the homestead exemption, to a home you live in. The law says to tell the property appraiser when something changes that affects it. If you don't, you can owe back taxes plus a penalty.

FIG. 02 · BEFORE YOU LEAVE

Six things to settle before you leave the house

Go in order. The first three we do with you. The last three are calls you make.

- [ ] 01 Give us a set of keys and the alarm code
  We hold them, set the rules for showings and check the house after each one.
- [ ] 02 Leave the air conditioning on
  An empty house still needs the air running. We check it when we're there.
- [ ] 03 Tell us what stays and what goes
  If the house is furnished, we'll say what to leave for the photos.
- [ ] 04 Call your insurance company
  Say the house is empty, and ask what changes. Many policies cover less after a month or two.
- [ ] 05 Call the property appraiser if you've moved for good
  The homestead exemption is for a home you live in. The law says to report the change.
- [ ] 06 Tell us your travel dates
  We set the timeline around them, so a signing never falls on a travel day.

Source: Our practice; Insurance Information Institute, When no one's home (June 3, 2025); National Association of Insurance Commissioners, Leaving home; Florida Statutes 196.011(10)(a)

03

What you can sign from where you are

Most of the papers can be signed online. The deed is the exception. It needs witnesses and a notary, and there are two ways to do that from away.

Florida law treats an electronic signature like a signature in ink. So the listing agreement, the flood form, offers and the contract can all be signed on your phone or computer. We send them, you read them, and you sign. The one rule is that everyone agrees to sign that way. You do that once, up front.

The deed is different. The deed is the paper that passes the house to the buyer. Florida law says you must sign it in front of two witnesses. A notary must sign it too, or the county won't record it.

NOTARY

A person the state licenses to watch you sign a paper, check who you are, and stamp the paper to say so. Every state has them, and so do most countries.

Source: Florida Statutes 695.03, Acknowledgment and proof, subsections (1) to (3)

That leaves two ways to sign the deed from where you are. You can sign on paper in front of a notary near you, or you can sign by video with a Florida notary.

On paper, with a notary near you

Florida accepts a notary from any state. It also accepts a notary from another country, if that notary has an official seal, and it accepts a U.S. consul there. The title company sends you the papers. You sign them in front of the notary and send them back.

By video, with a Florida notary

Florida calls this online notarization. A Florida notary meets you on a video call, checks your ID on camera, and watches you sign on screen. You can be in any state or any country. The two witnesses can join by video too, but they must be in the United States.

How you sign depends on the title company. Some accept video signing and some don't. We ask on the first call, and we'll tell you plainly if a trip is needed.

FIG. 03 · THREE WAYS TO SIGN

How each paper gets signed when you're away

Most papers use the first card. The deed and the closing papers use the second or the third.

Online

AN E-SIGNATURE

You sign on your phone or computer. No witness, no notary.

CAN YOU DO IT FROM WHERE YOU ARE?

✓ Yes, from anywhere

WHICH PAPERS

The listing agreement, the flood form, offers and the contract

Video

AN ONLINE NOTARY

A Florida notary meets you on a video call, checks your ID and watches you sign.

CAN YOU DO IT FROM WHERE YOU ARE?

◑ If the title company accepts it. Then from any state or country

WHICH PAPERS

The deed and the other closing papers

Paper

A NOTARY NEAR YOU

You sign on paper in front of a notary where you are, then send the papers back.

CAN YOU DO IT FROM WHERE YOU ARE?

✓ Yes, in any state, or abroad with a notary who has an official seal

WHICH PAPERS

The deed and the other closing papers

Some papers, like a power of attorney, have extra rules for video signing. Ask the title company before you count on it.

Source: Florida Statutes 668.50(7); 689.01; 695.03; 695.26; 117.265; 117.285

04

If someone signs for you

A power of attorney lets a person you trust sign in your place. It has to be done right, and the title company has to see it early.

Sometimes the owner can't sign, even by video. A power of attorney solves that. It's a paper that names a person, called your agent, to act for you.

Florida has rules for it. You sign it in front of two witnesses and a notary. The agent must be 18 or older. Two more rules matter. It ends when you die. And if you want it to keep working if you ever can't make decisions, it needs special words that make it durable.

The title company will read it before closing. The law lets them ask your agent to sign a sworn statement that you're alive and haven't cancelled it. So have it drafted for this sale, and send it in weeks ahead, not the week of closing.

FIG. 04 · THE POWER OF ATTORNEY

Four questions the title company will ask about it

Each one needs a yes before closing day.

1	Was it signed in front of two witnesses and a notary? That's what Florida law requires.	☐ YES	☐ NO
2	Does it let your agent sell this house? Have it drafted for this sale. A general form may not say enough.	☐ YES	☐ NO
3	Is it still in force? It ends when you die, and you can cancel it. The title company can ask your agent to swear it still stands.	☐ YES	☐ NO
4	Did the title company get it early? Send it weeks ahead, so there's time to fix anything.	☐ YES	☐ NO

These are plain-language questions, not a form. The title company has its own list.

Source: Florida Statutes 709.2105, 709.2104, 709.2109 and 709.2119; the fourth question is our practice

05

When a trust or an estate owns the house

If the deed isn't in your name, the title company needs the papers that show who has the power to sell. Get them in order before the listing goes live.

Look at the deed first. Sometimes the owner is a trust. Sometimes the owner has died, and the house is part of the estate. Each one adds a step, and each step takes time.

If a trust owns the house

A trust is run by a trustee. Florida law lets a trustee sell trust property. To prove it, the trustee gives the title company a short paper called a certification of trust. It names the trustee and says what the trustee can do, without showing the whole trust.

The title company can also ask for the pages of the trust that name the trustee and give the power to sell. Keep them handy.

If the owner has died

The house is part of the estate. A court names a person to handle the estate, called the personal representative. The court gives that person a paper called letters of administration. It proves they have the power to act.

The personal representative can sell the house if the will says so. If the will doesn't say so, the court has to approve the sale first.

Getting these papers in order before the listing goes live is the one thing that keeps a closing on time. We'll tell you what the title company will ask for on the first call.

FIG. 05 · TWO KINDS OF OWNER

What the title company asks for

Find the side that matches the deed. Each item is a paper to gather.

IF A TRUST OWNS THE HOUSE

The trustee signs

- A certification of trust, which names the trustee and the trustee's powers
- The trust pages that name the trustee and allow a sale, if the title company asks

IF THE OWNER HAS DIED

The personal representative signs

1. The court's letters of administration, which name the personal representative
2. The will, if it gives the power to sell
3. A court order approving the sale, if the will doesn't

Source: Florida Statutes 736.0816 and 736.1017; The Florida Bar, Probate in Florida; Florida Statutes 733.613

06

A tax rule for sellers from other countries

A U.S. tax rule called FIRPTA can hold back part of the price at closing. It's not a fee. It's a deposit against your tax bill.

Picture a condo on Siesta Key. The seller lives in Canada and pays taxes there, not here. When the condo sells, the buyer must hold back 15 percent of the price and send it to the IRS.

The IRS applies this rule to sellers it calls foreign persons. In plain words, that's a seller who isn't a U.S. citizen and isn't a U.S. resident for tax purposes. If you're not sure which you are, ask a tax advisor before you list.

The money isn't gone. It's a deposit against the tax you may owe on the sale. You file a U.S. tax return, and the amount held back counts toward what you owe.

There are exceptions. If the buyer will live in the home and the price is 300,000 dollars or less, nothing is held back. And you can ask the IRS ahead of time for a certificate that lowers the amount.

The buyer's side handles the paperwork at closing. You get a copy of the form that shows what was held back. Keep it for your tax return. If you're a U.S. citizen or resident, you sign a short statement saying so, and the rule doesn't apply.

FIG. 06 · WHAT THE BUYER HOLDS BACK

Where the price goes at closing under FIRPTA

Each bar is a share of the price. The hatched bar is the part the IRS holds until your tax return is filed.

The rest of the price, usual rule
Before your other closing costs come out

Held for the IRS, usual rule
Held until your tax return is filed

The whole price, home exception
The buyer will live there, and the price is 300,000 dollars or less. Other closing costs still come out

NOT HELD BACK HELD FOR THE IRS 0 TO 100 PERCENT OF THE PRICE

The share is set by the IRS. The money held back counts toward the tax you may owe, and a withholding certificate from the IRS can lower it.

Source: IRS, FIRPTA withholding; IRS, Exceptions from FIRPTA withholding

07

Before the listing goes live

Use this list in the weeks before the listing goes live. Most of it is one call or one email, and all of it is easier early.

FIG. 07 · THE CHECKLIST

Six things to settle before the listing goes live

Go in order. Each one is easier to fix in week one than in the week of closing.

- ☐ 01 Set up e-signing
  Most papers get signed on your phone or computer. Agree to sign that way once, up front.
- ☐ 02 Ask the title company how you'll sign the deed
  By video with a Florida notary, or on paper with a notary near you.
- ☐ 03 If someone will sign for you, get the power of attorney drafted now
  Two witnesses and a notary. Send it to the title company weeks ahead.
- ☐ 04 If a trust or an estate owns the house, gather its papers
  The certification of trust, or the court's letters and the will.
- ☐ 05 If you pay taxes in another country, ask about FIRPTA
  The buyer may hold back 15 percent of the price for the IRS.
- ☐ 06 Tell us your travel dates
  We set the timeline around them, not the other way around.

Source: Each step comes from the section it sums up. The sources are listed there and at the end of this guide

08

Your sale on one page

Fill in the right side before the listing goes live.

Where you'll be	City and time zone
Who has the keys	Us, and anyone else
Insurance company told the house is empty	Date of the call
Property appraiser told, if you moved for good	Date of the call
How you'll sign the deed	Video, or paper with a notary near you
Power of attorney, if needed	Drafted on; sent to the title company on
Whose name is on the deed	You, a trust or an estate
Trust or estate papers	Certification of trust, or letters and the will
FIRPTA	Applies or doesn't; tax advisor asked
Travel dates	Days a signing can't fall on

Sources

1. JJ Premier Group, how we run a sale for an owner who is away (our practice)
2. Florida Statutes 668.50, Uniform Electronic Transaction Act, subsections (5) and (7)
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/668.50
3. Florida Statutes 695.03, Acknowledgment and proof, subsections (1) to (3)
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/695.03
4. Insurance Information Institute, When no one's home: understanding the role of vacancy insurance, June 3, 2025 www.iii.org/blog/when-no-ones-home-understanding-roleof-vacancy-insurance/
5. National Association of Insurance Commissioners, Leaving home: insurance considerations for a move content.naic.org/article/consumer-insight-leaving-home-insurance-considerations-move
6. Florida Statutes 196.011(10)(a), the duty to tell the property appraiser when an exemption no longer applies
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/196.011
7. Florida Statutes 689.01, How real estate conveyed
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/689.01
8. Florida Statutes 695.26, Requirements for recording instruments affecting real property
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/695.26
9. Florida Statutes 117.265, Online notarization procedures
   www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/117.265
10. Florida Statutes 117.285, Supervising the witnessing of electronic records
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/117.285
11. Florida Statutes 709.2105, Qualifications of agent; execution of power of attorney
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/709.2105
12. Florida Statutes 709.2104, Durable power of attorney
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/709.2104
13. Florida Statutes 709.2109, Termination or suspension of power of attorney
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/709.2109
14. Florida Statutes 709.2119, Acceptance of and reliance upon power of attorney
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/709.2119
15. Florida Statutes 736.0816, Specific powers of trustee
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/736.0816
16. Florida Statutes 736.1017, Certification of trust
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/736.1017
17. The Florida Bar, Probate in Florida (consumer pamphlet) www.floridabar.org/public/consumer/pamphlet026/
18. Florida Statutes 733.613, Personal representative's right to sell real property
    www.flsenate.gov/Laws/Statutes/2026/733.613
19. IRS, FIRPTA withholding www.irs.gov/individuals/international-taxpayers/firpta-withholding
20. IRS, Exceptions from FIRPTA withholding www.irs.gov/individuals/international-taxpayers/exceptions-from-firpta-withholding

This guide is general information about places and rules, written for Lakewood Ranch · Sarasota · Bradenton. It is not legal, insurance or tax advice, and nothing in it is a figure for any particular house.

JJ

PREMIER GROUP

Coldwell Banker Realty

Tell us where you are and where the house is.

We'll set the timeline around your travel, not the other way around, and we'll say on the first call what the title company will ask for. If you'd rather start on your own, this guide is the order we'd do it in.

Joelyn Nauman

(309) 258-0225

joelyn.nauman@cbrealty.com

Jessica Garza

(941) 306-8699

jessica.garza@cbrealty.com

jjpremiergroup.com/guides/selling-a-home-you-dont-live-in JJ Premier Group is a real estate team: Joelyn Nauman and Jessica Garza, licensed Florida real estate agents with Coldwell Banker Realty, Lakewood Ranch, FL. Real estate services are provided through Coldwell Banker Realty. Equal Housing Opportunity.